

Clairton Sportsmen's Club

Some information on the new NRL22 matches:

What is the format of NRL22?

NRL22 is a way for Clairton Sportsmen's Club to participate and compete with each other every single month. All that is required is 100 yards, the NRL22 monthly course of fire, the NRL22 18/19 target package, and the standard barricade list. The local shoots will take place from April 2019 to August 2019. There will be a Demonstration Day on March 16th at the Covered Rifle Range. Your questions can be asked there and then. Some equipment will be on-site so you can get a feel for what is involved.

What does a club need to do to be involved?

First off, we use the term club loosely. NRL22 is designed to be as inclusive and cost efficient as possible. Therefore, any organization may participate. Whether it is a group of 5 friends with a large piece of property, or an established rifle club with 50 members, all are welcome.

What is the monthly course of fire?

One week before the designated month NRL22 will release 5 courses of fire to be used in that month. The course of fire will be published on NRL22.org. The course of fire will always be 2 prone stages, 1 positional, 1 barricade and a 5th that can be any of those things. 4 of the stages will be with steel at 10 points per hit. 1 stage will be on paper and scoring from 10 down to a possible 1 biased on accuracy to help break ties. The paper target will be available on NRL22.org for download.

Because the course of fire is known by all and released early, Range Officers and Match Directors will be able to participate along with everyone else with no advantage. We also expect that clubs and individuals will practice the COF and hopefully put on clinics for new shooters and to gain an edge for game day.

The Course of Fire is only 5 stages?

Yes! NRL22 will provide 5 stages, and only those 5 will be used.

What is the NRL22 18/19 target package?

The 18/19 target package is a joint effort between NRL22 and JC Steel Targets. The package consists of 16 AR500 targets, and 10 hangers. If a club chooses instead to build their own targets, you may access plans. The target package is big enough so that the monthly COF will not use any single target more than once so that all 5 stages may be shot at once by different squads.

What is the standard barricade list?

The barricades are mostly common household items that are probably already owned or easily and cheaply obtained. Home Depot part numbers are provided to provide reference to the item that we are using. Similar items may be used. They are: 6 foot A-frame ladder (#100662617), 3 cinder blocks measuring 8"x8"x16" (#100825), 5 gallon bucket (#05GLHD2), a 2 gallon bucket (#RG502), any 10 foot length of rope, a folding chair with an open back (#80587), a used pick up truck tire that can be obtained free at a tire store (overall diameter between 28-32"), a 55 gallon plastic drum that can be obtained free from car wash's, a saw horse with a shelf on the bottom (#194988) and a Tank Trap (instructions to construct the tank trap are in the NRL22 Rules and Regulations addendum section).

What are the classes?

There are 4 classes in total. They are Open, Base, Ladies and Young Guns (8-16). All classes must utilize rifles chambered in .22 Long Rifle. The Open class is unlimited in the rifle and optic they use. Ladies and Young Guns may also utilize any rifle and optic. Ladies class is for the women shooters. Young Guns are for the kids ages 8-16. Young guns must be able to manipulate the rifle safely on their own, but voice coaching is absolutely encouraged. The last class is Base class, which is for the budget minded shooter. This class is for rifles that cost MSRP of $350 or less and optics that cost MSRP of $700 or less. Some modifications are allowed in Base class. For a more complete description reference, view the official NRL 22 rules and regulations at NRL22.org.

NRL 22 Intro & Details

NRL 22 Tactical Competition